5 Raycom Sports

Clemson fans don't have to wait long to see what happened just a few hours previously as Raycom Sports produces Clemson football each week. While the broadcast takes only two and a half hours, it takes a week worth of work to get the games on local TV and ESPN. Maria Farry takes us behind the scenes.

7 Anthony Parete

Clemson's backup quarterback has served in that capacity for four years under two of the nation's top quarterbacks in recent memory, Homer Jordan and Mike Eppley. Jill Mixon takes a look at Parete, his duties and his personal slogan for 1984.

47 Mike Eppley

Clemson's starting quarterback wasn't always the leader of the team. In fact, in January of 1982 many Clemson fans thought he might be more of a contributor in basketball than football. Then, hard-luck besieged Homer Jordan and his misfortune was Eppley's fortune. Tim Bourret reviews Eppley's progression to stardom.

48 The Hidden Stars

Clemson has had one of the best rushing attacks in the nation in recent years but the running backs have received most of the attention. But, Larry Van Der Heyden's veteran offensive line is one of the reasons for the Tigers' winning record. Kassie Kessinger talked with Van Der Heyden about his talented players.

57 University Feature

Clemson students benefit greatly from the Edgar Brown Scholarship. His service to Clemson is difficult to summarize in a program, never mind just one page. Lee Plumlee tells us all about Brown's contributions to this University.

61 This Day in Tiger Football

Jeff Rhodes takes us on a chronological look at the history of Clemson football on this date, October 6. Clemson has been successful on this date as Jeff reviews the game-by-game results.

65 Stats of Interest

For the first time, we have a complete listing of all of Clemson's top 25 rankings in any statistical category of the NCAA annual rankings. It will solve many a trivia question for you.

97 Tigers in the Crowd

Here is a short bio on six coaches and players in Clemson athletics who deserve some attention.

102 Tools of the Trade

What in the world is a wet-bulb and how does it help the Tigers during practice? This is just one of the gizmos managers, trainers and Danny Ford use to run a smooth, efficient and safe football practice. Jill Mixon leads us on a tour of the Clemson practice field.

Today's Game

By Tim Bourret

The two winningest teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference over the last five and a half years will renew an old rivalry a little earlier in the season than usual this afternoon when North Carolina comes to Clemson. Normally, this game is a late season clash and one that has attracted national interest, but this season the contest is being played in October, the first time in 23 years it has not been played in the month of November.

Clemson and North Carolina both have exactly 46 victories over the last five and a half seasons, the top totals by far in the ACC. Although both clubs enter this action with comparatively sub-par records, North Carolina and Clemson have been the premier football programs in the ACC and among the best in the South in recent years.

North Carolina has a 46-16-1 ledger since the beginning of the 1979 season. The Tar Heels have been to a bowl game in each of the last five years with Dick Crum's team coming out on top in four of them. During this time North Carolina has defeated national powers Michigan, Texas (twice), Arkansas, Boston College and Pittsburgh.

National rankings have also been common with the Tar Heels. Heading into this season, only Georgia had a longer streak of being ranked in the top 20 since the decade of the 1980s began. North Carolina was ranked 52 straight polls until the stretch was broken late last season and overall, North Carolina has been ranked 54 times in this decade, the seventh best total in the nation.

Clemson has a ledger of 46-13-2 in the last five and a half years, has claimed a national championship, two conference championships, had the second longest winning streak in conference history against ACC teams, and also has been fairly prominent in the national polls and statistics.

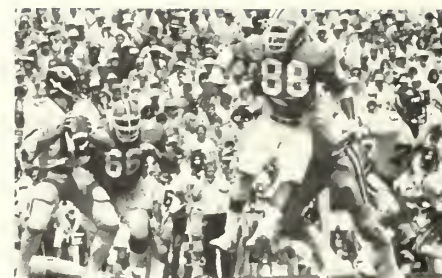

Clemson was ranked number-one in the final 1981 poll, number-eight in the final 1982 poll and number-11 in the concluding poll of 1983. Forty times since Danny Ford has been the head coach (1979) Clemson has been rated in the top 20. And, coming into this season the Tigers had the best three-year record in college football (30-2-2).

While this Clemson team has already lost more games this season than in any of the last three, there have been some bright moments offensively and defensively. The Tigers have had troubles with turnovers in the last two weeks (12), but the offense has moved the ball well. This week Clemson is ninth in the nation in scoring (34.7 points per game), 22nd in rushing offense (222.0 yards per game) and is 23rd in total offense (401.2 yards per game).

Mike Eppley is 13th in the nation in passing efficiency and has been ranked in the top 20 in the nation in nearly every weekly ranking in the last two years. He finished third last season and was ranked number-one heading into the Georgia game. Eppley has made the most of his passes the last two years as he now has 22 career touchdown passes, 21 in the last two seasons. He is only two TD passes away from tying the Clemson career record of 24 held by Tommy Kendrick and Bobby Gage.

Stacey Driver is also in the top 50 in the nation in rushing and has 319 yards for the season. He is coming off a career high 131 yards on 26 carries at Georgia Tech. The Griffin, GA native has shown his spunk on every carry this year, and became a workhorse last week when Terrence Flagler went out with a sprained ankle.

The Clemson defense has been anchored by All-American William Perry. The 315-pounder continues to lead Clemson in tackles for loss this year (nine) and he needs only five more tackles behind the line of scrimmage to break Randy Scott's career record of 45. Perry also needs just one sack to break Jim Stuckey's career record of 18. He has 35 tackles for the year, second on the team.

Henry Walls and Ronald Watson have also been standouts recently. Walls, who is the only Tiger ever to lead Clemson in tackles in his freshman year, has had double figures in tackles in each of the last two games. Watson, an honorable mention All-American last year as a junior free safety, had a career high 17 tackles against Georgia Tech last week. The total was also an all-time Clemson record for a defensive back, breaking the mark of 16 set by Jack Cain against Maryland in 1979.

The Clemson special teams have also been outstanding this season. Dale Hatcher is currently seventh in the nation in punting with 44.2 yards per punt and he is the major reason Clemson is second in the nation in net punting at 43.7 yards per boot. Donald Igwebuike is 23rd in the nation in field goals and has not missed a placement this season. He is a lofty 23-23 on extra points and field goals combined. Ray Williams is 35th in the nation in kickoff returns.

Ronald Watson set a record for tackles by a defensive back with 17 against Georgia Tech last week.

Stacey Driver had a career high 131 yards in Atlanta.

North Carolina enters this game off a 23-17 victory over Kansas, the Tar Heels' first victory of the year after opening defeats to Navy and Boston College. As usual, the North Carolina offense has been outstanding this season as the Tar Heels are averaging 412 yards per game in total offense, the 18th best figure in the nation. They are 29th in rushing and 29th in passing.

Ethan Horton and Kevin Anthony are two of the reasons the North Carolina offense has been so successful. Horton defies the logic stating you have to be a diminutive scatback type of runner to be successful in football. He is almost as tall as Michael Jordan at 6-4, but is a 220-pound back who is currently 21st in the nation in rushing with an average of 106.7 yards per game. He is also 33rd in the country in scoring and 16th in all-purpose running.

Horton has been a leader for the Tar Heels in big games throughout his career. He first burst on the scene at the 1982 Gator Bowl. In pea soup fog he rushed for 144 yards in 27 carries in leading North Carolina to a 31-27 win over Arkansas on national television. In 1982 he served most of the year as a backup to current USFL star Kelvin Bryant. He gained 576 yards for the season, but again he capped the season with an MVP performance in a bowl game as he rushed for 119 yards in a Sun Bowl win over Texas.

Last year Horton led the team in rushing with 1,107 yards on 200 carries, an average of 5.5 per rush. He had seven 100-yard games and finished 17th in the nation in rushing. This year he is off to another great start with 320 yards in three games, including 162 yards on 22 carries at Boston College. He also caught two passes for 63 yards and scored all three North Carolina touchdowns.

Anthony has come on of late, especially last week against Kansas when he hit 15 of 26 passes for 180 yards. He has moved into the top 35 in the nation in total offense and passing efficiency and has completed 60 percent of his passes this season for 542 yards. The sophomore quarterback from Decatur, GA had a 3.97 high school grade point average and received appointments to both Navy and Air Force.

Arnold Franklin is Anthony's favorite target with nine receptions for 128 yards so far this season. Earl Winfield has caught eight for 137 yards and a touchdown to rank second on the team, but it was Larry Griffin who was the top pass catcher against Kansas last week. The native of Chesapeake, VA had four catches for 58 yards, many of them in clutch situations.

If Clemson fans' only exposure to the North Carolina defense is the Boston College game via ESPN's prime time presentation, they are in for a rude awakening ... as Kansas was. The team that yielded 52 points to Heisman Trophy winner

Doug Flutie gave up only 50 yards on the ground to Kansas and had eight, count them, eight quarterback sacks.

While Micah Moon was a preseason All-American this year and is the emotional leader of this team, it was a few youngsters who made the difference against Kansas last week. Freshman linebacker Noel McEachern does not have a lengthy bio in the North Carolina press guide this year, but that will double in size next year. He had a career high 11 tackles against Kansas, including three quarterback sacks and five total tackles for loss. Classmate Reuben Davis was also a thorn in the side of the Jayhawks as he collected six tackles and two quarterback sacks.

This is an important game for both teams (not that there is ever an unimportant football game at either of these schools), as both Dick Crum and Danny Ford want to get some momentum going toward a national ranking come January 2. Both teams will have plenty of motivation as Clemson hopes to continue its home unbeaten streak. Clemson has not lost a home game in its last 21 contests in Death Valley. The last team to beat Clemson at home ... North Carolina by a 24-19 score on November 8, 1980.

Raycom Sports

By Maria Farry

Publicity is a key factor in making any sports program even more successful. One of the best ways of publicizing is through television. Although Clemson Tiger football cannot be broadcast live in 1984, Rick Ray and his staff at Raycom Sports make it possible for Tiger fans to watch their favorite team play. Each Saturday night, the Clemson game is broadcast on a tape-delayed basis by Raycom.

Raycom, a Charlotte-based sports network, was founded in 1979 by Rick and Dee Ray. The husband and wife team now serve as the company's president and executive vice president. For the second consecutive year, Raycom Sports is responsible for the tape-delayed broadcast of Clemson football games. Few people realize how much preparation is involved in making ready for the Tiger football season. Behind-the-scenes work has been going on at Raycom since May.

Don McGuire serves as executive producer for Raycom. His job includes taking care of countless details before the game is actually televised. McGuire says, "We have to schedule our crew, announcers, and other workers in advance. We must get advertisers, clear stations, line up travel reservations, and get permission for cable lines from the phone company."

McGuire goes on to further illustrate the position of executive producer. "The executive producer position can be related to that of professional football team. My role is one that is comparable to the owner of the team. I make three basic decisions: do we televise the game, how much is the game going to cost, and finally, who do we hire to work?"

Toby Jenkins, director for the Clemson telecasts, is in charge of the camera shots and other technical decisions. "Since I control the actions of the videotape, cameramen, and graphics, I must stay at least one play ahead of the game itself. The camera crew and I have meetings during the week to discuss football situations that could take place. Each camera position is responsible for certain coverages during particular situations. If the cameramen do their jobs right, it makes my job easier, and consequently makes it a better telecast."

More than anything else, Jenkins counts on experience while preparing for the game. He says, "Experience is the bottom line. You can't determine exactly what is going to happen during the game, so you react from experiences of past games."

Producer Tom Courtney spends most of his time studying the game, teams and coaches. According to Courtney, it is quite important for the producer to stay on top of the teams' records, characteristics, and other inside views. "I also set up replays, graphics, time commercial breaks, and keep in contact with the announcers throughout the game."

Clemson alumnus Karen Blackman is also behind the scenes with Raycom. Her position is that of logistics coordinator. Says Blackman, "My job at Raycom leaves me in charge of the distribution of equipment, crew, cable lines, and anything else that has to do with games. I also assist Don McGuire in lining up employees for the Clemson games. During the game, I work on press row and keep stats. I stay in constant contact with the production truck and the announcers so I can pass on important information."

As in the televising of any football game, announcers play an important role in the Raycom telecast of Tiger football. Art Eckman, play-by-play man, and Kim McQuilken, color analyst, cover the Clemson games. Eckman believes that preparation is the key to a successful broadcast. "I read up on Clemson and their opponents from sports releases, preseason publications, and interviews from television."

McQuilken, former Washington Redskin and Atlanta Falcon quarterback, is in his first year in the Raycom announcing booth. He agrees with his partner's views on being prepared. McQuilken says, "You just can't show up and do the game. You have to be prepared by keeping up with the team's involved."

Not only is the telecast of a Clemson game a detailed process, it is also a costly one. Executive Producer Don McGuire says, "To broadcast a game at Clemson costs around $20,000. Of course, this cost is reduced a little bit because we use a lot of Clemson personnel. We use four cameras, two tape machines, around 30 people for production, and around 52 football fields worth of cable."

The game shown at 11:30 Saturday nights is the culmination of an entire week of preparation by Raycom. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, details about travel arrangements, crews, and cable lines must be double checked. The producer and director produce the commercial tapes and game features on Thursday. Friday is the day the Raycom crew arrives and begins to set up monitors, cables, and cameras.

By kickoff time Saturday, rehearsals and final production meetings are completed. Once the game is over, the equipment is packed away and the tape is edited for broadcast later that evening for thousands of enthusiastic Tiger fans.

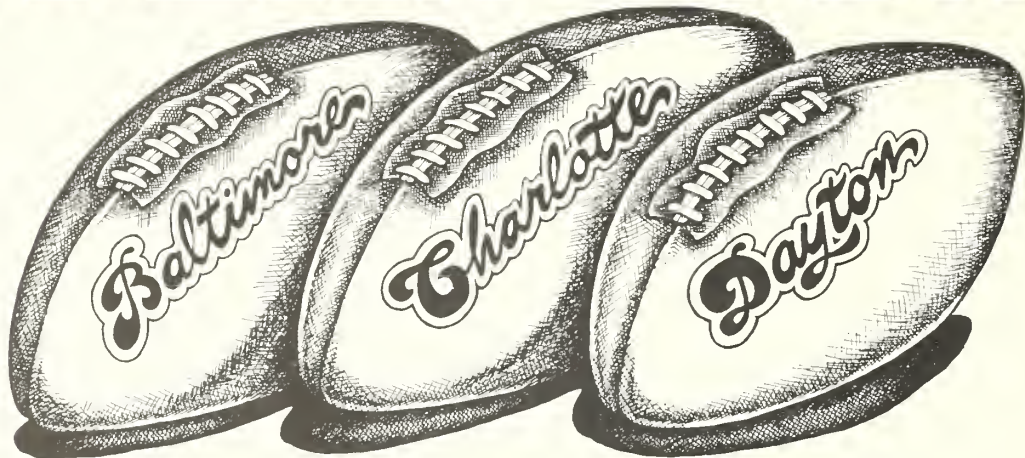

The producer, director and support staff from the Clemson communications center stay up until the game is completely fed to the affiliates who show the replay. That means 2:00 AM, so Saturday is a very long day for the crew. On Sunday a tape is made for the ESPN showing of the game on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 PM.

As you can see, many people work countless hours so the Tiger fans can enjoy just two and a half hours of action on Saturday night.

Art Eckman is the play-by-play voice of the Clemson Football replay network.

Holding More In '84

By Jill Mixon

He takes all the kidding and ribbing by his teammates well. Most of the jokes are a takeoff on this season's IPTAY slogan Uproar '84. "Hey Pay Ray. How about this year's slogan 'holding more in '84!'"

The young man who absorbs the brunt of this punch line is 6-0, 190 senior backup quarterback Anthony Parete. But, as far as Parete's actual holding duties go, it's no joking matter to the Clemson coaching staff. With Parete as the holder over the past three seasons, Clemson kickers are 53-70 on field goals and 119-121 on extra point attempts. That means 90 percent of all placekicks that have been held by Parete have been successful. He truly should rent out his hands for a dishwashing liquid commercial.

"I really have fun as the holder, and it gives me an opportunity to contribute to the team," stated Parete. "I've got the easiest job on the extra point and field goal conversion process. Scott (Williams) does a great job on the snap. It's always right there for me. I rarely have to spin the laces away from the kicker. Then all I have to do is get the ball down on the tee and Donald (Igwebuike) kicks it through. It's all so simple."

Parete related a story from a time when everything was not so simple. "It happened in the second game I ever held. We were playing Tulane in the Superdome in 1981, and we were already down, 5-0. Bob Paulling was preparing for a field goal attempt. I was kind of nervous, because holding was still a little new to me. Then I mishandled the snap and had to pick up the ball and scramble. It seemed like I ran around forever in the backfield before I was finally tackled. Fortunately, we ended up winning the game 13-5, after a touchdown and two field goals. Luckily, that bobble cured me of being nervous, and I haven't felt any pressure on a holding situation since then."

But, holding was not the reason Parete was recruited to Clemson. At Bishop Kenny High School in Jacksonville, FL, he was a standout quarterback and defensive back. "The coaching staff at Clemson tried me at cornerback my freshman fall. One day in practice I was trying to force a sweep on Jeff McCall, and Jeff just leveled me and I dislocated my hip," explained Parete. "I was in the hospital for three or four weeks and then on crutches for nine more. So needless to say, I ended up red-shirting the 1980 season."

It appears that the hard luck Parete ran into as a freshman has followed him through his career.

During 1981 through 1984 the 22-year-old Jacksonville native has served as the backup signal caller. And, he has had to wait in the wings behind some outstanding Clemson quarterbacks. In 1981, Homer Jordan finished 12th in the nation in passing efficiency, and Mike Eppley completed the 1983 season third in the country in that same category. But, Parete is not bitter about being in the reserve role. "I've definitely learned a lot being behind two such good quarterbacks. I'm not ashamed in any way that I'm the backup. Now, if we were having 3-8 seasons, then it might be embarrassing to be number-two, but over the past four seasons we've been 33-3-2 and had outstanding records."

Quarterback coach Nelson Stokley is certainly impressed with Parete's outstanding attitude. "Anthony has handled being the backup very well. He's a true competitor through and through. He has improved where some people would be resigned to taking a backseat. And, he is a real asset to our football team," commented Stokley.

One thing is for sure Anthony Parete is an outstanding individual from an outstanding state for high school football — Florida. Clemson assistant coach Chuck Reedy, a native of Florida himself, recruits in that state and is the one who signed Parete to come to Clemson. Reedy began, "Florida is so rich in high school football talent. There are usually 200-250 kids that sign scholarships each year and that figure puts them in the top five in the country. One reason the talent is so good down there is that Florida holds spring practice. When you add up all the time devoted to spring practice it's like having another season of experience. And, that experience can really mean a lot when a player goes to college."

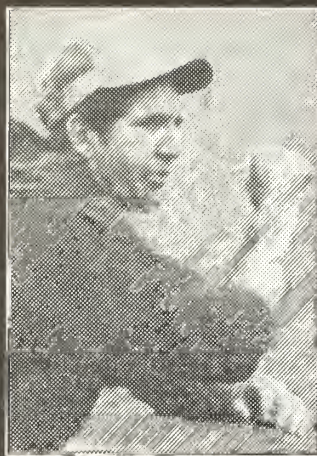

Parete also has fond memories of Florida football. "At the time I was a junior in high school Coach Reedy was still coaching at Baker County High School in MacClenny, FL, one of our big rivals. Coach Reedy's team was ranked third in the state and averaging about 40 points a game coming into our game with them. We ended up beating them 17-13, and that's one game I won't let Coach Reedy forget," said Parete.

So what does the future "hold" for Anthony Parete after five years at Clemson. "I am going to finish my degree in May, and then marry my high school sweetheart, Kathy Hunt, on June 8, 1985. I'd like to go back to Bishop Kenny and look into teaching and coaching there. It would mean a lot to go back and coach at my old high school. Besides, my dad coached there for 34 years. I've got to carry on the family tradition."

Anthony Parete knows a lot about carrying on traditions. He's one of the reasons Clemson's football tradition has continued to flourish in recent years.

Anthony Parete would be a starter at most of the schools in the ACC.

President Bill Atchley

Clemson President Bill L. Atchley has an impressive list of credentials and accomplishments. He is also known as a very down-to-earth, plain-spoken individualist. In one of his frequent banquet introductions, he was recently described this way: "This man is an aggressive administrator, a supersalesman, an innovative educator, and a talker of good plain common sense."

Since coming here in 1979, Bill Atchley has steered Clemson on a steady course toward becoming one of the Southeast's preeminent universities. Under his leadership Clemson is also making great strides in developing practical science and technology and adapting it for the good of all South Carolina. But in talking about what has been done at Clemson in the past five years, Bill Atchley always puts the emphasis on "we", not "me." And here is some of what Clemson has accomplished during the Atchley tenure:

- launched strategic planning to develop "centers of excellence," academic programs where Clemson will aim for a national reputation.
- obtained a $1 million Center for VLSI Reliability Research, making Clemson the nation's headquarters for reliability research on "very large scale integrated circuits," a key component of the so-called "supercomputers" of the future.
- established the $1 million Abney Chair of Free Enterprise in the College of Commerce and Industry.
- established the Engineering Center for Automated Manufacturing Technology to study robotics and other automation technology.
- established the S.C. Energy Research and Development Center.
- established the Energy and Resource Development Institute, which investigates the management and development of energy resources in the entire Southeast.
- joined with the S.C. Research Authority to create a 210-acre research park near campus to attract high technology industries.
- unveiled plans for The Strom Thurmond Center, a $25 million complex that will contain a performing arts building, a continuing education center, and an institute of government and public affairs.
- launched a multi-year, multi-million-dollar project called "Challenge to Greatness" to raise funds to bolster academic programs and enhance the University's total educational experience.

Also during this period the 15,000-seat upper deck project for the north stands in Memorial Stadium got the nod, and despite four years of one of the nation's worst recessions, Clemson University with Bill Atchley at the helm has raised $18.3

million in private funds for academic programs and boosted the assets of the Clemson Foundation from $3.4 million to $10.3 million.

A Missouri native, Bill Atchley has an ideal background to lead Clemson — a unique blend of education and experience. He holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in civil engineering from the University of Missouri and an engineering doctorate from Texas A&M. He spent 23 extremely successful years as a college professor, administrator, and engineering dean at the University of Missouri and at West Virginia University before coming to Clemson in 1979. He still owns and oversees operation of a productive 500-acre farm near his birthplace in southern Missouri.

Clemson's president is well-known for his work in the energy field. He was chairman of the Governor's Commission on Energy, Economy and Environment in West Virginia and has served as science and energy advisor to five governors in three states. He holds national-level appointments on the Committee on Fossil Fuels of the U.S. Department of Energy and on the board of directors of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project, which has federal loan guarantees of $1 billion. At WVU he directed a group that brought a $24 million "fluidized bed" research facility to that campus, and he led a West Virginia business team whose efforts resulted in the selection of the Morgantown area for a $700 million coal conversion plant. He also managed to find time to serve as budget officer for a $63 million Personal Rapid Transit System.

From 1966 to 1975 at the University of Missouri-Rolla, Bill Atchley was the coordinator and liaison between the engineering school and inner-city projects in St. Louis. He also developed the program for the school's doctor of engineering degree, and he designed its professional development degree.

President Atchley has received many honors stemming from his work in engineering and higher education. He is in Who's Who in Engineering Education and is a member of the Academy of Sciences and Outstanding Educators of America. His publications show him to be a leader in assessing society's needs and determining how education can best help the nation and the world.

At one time or another he has been a town alderman, a Rotarian, Chamber of Commerce director, Lions Club member, and local council director for the Boy Scouts of America. He has been chairman of the American Society of Engineering Education in the Midwest, chairman of the Council of Presidents for all public colleges and universities in South Carolina, and is on the board of directors of the American Federal Savings Bank. He is the only college president in America serving on the prestigious U.S. International Sports Committee, whose members include three professional sports commissioners, the president of the American Baseball League and U.S. Olympic Committee, and the publisher of Time magazine.

An active sports enthusiast, Bill Atchley has a superior knowledge of athletics. His expertise is especially proficient in baseball. Before his college days and a stint in the Army, he spent two years as a professional baseball pitcher for the former New York Giants organization. He is one educator who understands intimately the concept of the student-athlete. He himself was an athlete who attended college on an athletic scholarship, yet he recognizes that the role of a university is to build character and to increase knowledge and intellectual abilities in students.

President Atchley and his wife, the former Pat Limbaugh, have three children. Julie is a 26-year-old graduate of Southeast Missouri University and is a special education teacher in the St. Louis school system. Pam, 22, was graduated from Clemson with a degree in engineering last May, while David, 18, is a freshman at Wofford College.

Athletic Director Bill McLellan

No major university that stresses academic achievement by student-athletes as Clemson does has had a more dynamic, aggressive and forceful impact on the Atlantic Coast Conference and on national intercollegiate athletics in the last 14 years.

That success, across-the-board, in all sports and in the development of funding for a self-sustaining athletic program, parallels the administration of Bill McLellan as athletic director at Clemson University. Working his way up through the ranks after joining the Tiger athletic staff in May 1958, McLellan took on the task of running the whole show in February 1971. Since then the sports information people have not had the luxury of consistently using file photos or existing text material to depict the Clemson athletic complex. At Jervy Athletic Center nothing is more consistent than change.

Brick and mortar, additions to facilities, aesthetic improvements, innovative funding techniques, new ideas and fulfilled dreams have kept writers and cameramen busy chronicling the astigmatic success and growth of Clemson athletics.

In 1971, as McLellan charted a course for athletic excellence, IPTAY was providing $400,000 annually for scholarships. Today it is reaching $5 million a year for athletic and academic enrichment. As Executive Director of IPTAY, McLellan insists that his fund raisers maintain an endowment to assure that all commitments to Clemson athletes who wear the orange and white are met.

He has blended private support, gate receipts and consortium with state banks to make Clemson Memorial Stadium the showplace for a national football champion. Soccer, baseball, tennis, swimming, track, and wrestling all have facilities that others seek to emulate. In Littlejohn Coliseum, NCAA and NIT banners proudly proclaim that excellence in the two major revenue sports, football and basketball, can coexist. In all, Clemson competes in 17 NCAA Division I programs – 11 men's and 6 women's – and conference titles, as well as national ranking are growing consistently in number. Record crowds watch the Tigers in action personally and millions more see the excitement of paw power on regional and national television.

Bill McLellan's theory for success is simple ... "the Clemson family." He asserts that those who care for this Institution – alumni, friends, business and industry – can accomplish any task, meet any goal so long as they pull together in the best interest of Clemson University.

The pace he sets belie his 52 years, but his wife, Ann, will attest to his busy schedule that allows few opportunities for an afternoon on the lake, a family gathering or a quiet evening at home. But there's not a closer "Clemson family" than Bill and Ann Rogers McLellan, daughter Susy, a Winthrop alumna, Cliff and Bill, Clemson grads and Arch Anna, now a senior at Winthrop.

A native of Hamer, SC and a Dillon football recruit of Frank Howard, McLellan earned two football letters at Clemson and was on the 1952 Gator Bowl team. He earned his bachelors degree in 1954 and added a masters in agricultural economics in 1956. In June 1982 the Clemson University Alumni Association recognized him with the highest honor it can bestow – the Clemson Alumni Distinguished Service Award. Bill McLellan, an AD's AD who sees the forest and the trees at the same times.

Head Coach Danny Ford

What do Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, Penn State's Joe Paterno, Nebraska's Tom Osborne, Clemson's Danny Ford and Michigan's Bo Schembechler all have in common? Sure, they're all head football coaches in Division I colleges, but there is one other thing that puts these men above the other 98 head coaches in Division I-A schools.

When it comes to winning football games, they are the nation's five best, and it seems only fitting that Clemson's own Danny Ford would be ranked fourth on that list. After just six years as Clemson's head coach, Ford has a .793 winning percentage.

Ford and the Tigers have also won 91.2 percent of their games over the past three seasons, the best three-year record in the nation and the best three-year record in Clemson history.

And the achievements continue. The Tigers have totally dominated the ACC, winning their last 19 games against conference foes. Only Nebraska can claim three straight seasons of undefeated play against its conference teams.

It's no wonder to Clemson fans that Ford has been ranked as one of the nation's best coaches. The 36-year-old Gadsden, AL, native came to Clemson in January, 1977, as assistant head coach and offensive line coach under the then head coach Charley Pell. Then December 10, 1978, Pell relinquished the head coaching duties of the 1978 Gator Bowl to Ford, and since that time the Tigers have compiled a 45-11-2 record.

But Ford did not discover his winning attitude at Clemson; he brought it with him. Including his years as a player at Alabama under the late Bear Bryant, he has been associated with college football for the last 18 years. Fourteen of those clubs have had winning records and 11 have gone to bowl games. Additionally, the 18 teams have had a record of 124-47-3, a .720 winning percentage.

Ford came to Clemson and promptly led the Tigers to their first ever national championship in 1981 — the pinnacle in college football. He was deservedly named national Coach of the Year by United Press International, Station WTBS in Atlanta, Pigskin Club of Washington, American Football Coaches Association, Washington Touchdown Club, Columbus (Ohio) Touchdown Club, Atlanta Touchdown Club and Football Writers Association of America. He was also the youngest coach (33) ever to take a team to the National Championship.

Since that time the Tigers have posted a winning percentage of .912, losing only two games in three years. Crowds filled Death Valley so often to watch Clemson defeat teams during the last six years that the stadium has been enlarged twice and is now the nation's tenth largest stadium and South Carolina's largest, seating 78,915.

With this list of accomplishments, it is easy to see that the Clemson University Board of Trustees was right when announcing that Ford should take the reigns of head coach six years ago. The Board's Student Affairs Committee considered only one name for the job and after two meetings between Ford and the committee on the morning of December 5, 1978, it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that Ford should be named as Clemson's 21st head coach. Nearly 40 years after hiring 31-year-old Frank Howard, Clemson had hired a gifted 30-year-old Alabama graduate to lead the Tiger forces on the gridiron.

Ford began his association with college football in 1967 when he started for Bear Bryant as Ken Stabler's sophomore tight end. He played three years for Bryant (including three wins against Clemson) and was an All-Southeastern Conference choice, All-SEC academic selection and team captain during his senior season.

After receiving his B.S. degree in industrial arts in 1970, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. Upon earning a master's degree in special education in 1971, he was made a full-time assistant under Bryant for the 1972 and 1973 seasons. The Tide went to four more post-season games while Ford was on the staff.

Ford then accepted a position as an assistant coach on Jimmy Sharp's staff at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-1976), before he came to Clemson under Charley Pell, who had just been named the Tigers' head coach. Pell and Ford had served together on the VPI staff for two seasons.

And only 23 games later, Ford became head coach of the Tigers at age 30, the youngest Division I head coach in the nation, and went on to prove that age has nothing to do with experience or winning.

In Times Like These, How Do You Keep Businesses Going, Farms Growing, Wheels Turning, Kids Learning, Teams Competing, And Ends Meeting?

It takes work. And careful planning. But you can do the things you need to do. Make it a good life for yourself and the people you love. Make it an even better, brighter future. And you don't have to do it alone.

We'll help. With all the banking services you need. Whether you're just starting out with your first job, first home, first baby. Or you're already established and looking for ways to make the most of what you've accomplished.

But there's more to it than just providing the services you need now. There's the promise that we'll grow with you. Refining services to help you cope with change. Developing new ones to help you get ahead.

So you can come to C&S. And stay with C&S. Like thousands of folks all across South Carolina. They're still building, growing, and achieving, despite the up and down, 'round and 'round times we live in.

But that doesn't come as a surprise. After all, every one of them is a Financial Wizard.

Assistant Coaches

Don Denning is in his fourth season with the Clemson staff. The deep secondary coach and north Georgia recruiter joined the Tigers on July 1, 1981. He has previously served Western Carolina as defensive coordinator and assistant athletic director, Memphis State as assistant head coach, and Delta State University as head coach. Denning graduated from Presbyterian College in 1960 and received a master's degree from Western Carolina in 1969.

Tom Harper, the Tigers' assistant head coach, came to Clemson from Virginia Tech's coaching staff on Feb. 2, 1981. The native of Piqua, OH served as the defensive coordinator for Virginia Tech, North Carolina, Iowa State and Wake Forest, where he was head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1955 and received his master's degree at the same school in 1958. Eight of his former players have signed pro contracts in the last three years.

Les Herrin has coached the Tiger linebackers for the past three years. He is also responsible for recruiting the lower part of South Carolina. He joined the staff on Feb. 9, 1981 from Appalachian State where he was defensive coordinator. The 1971 Western Carolina graduate captained the Catamounts in 1970 and was named the team's MVP in 1971.

Lawson Holland was a reserve quarterback for the Tigers from 1970-73, which makes him the only current coach who played Clemson football. In his seventh year, Holland is in charge of receivers and recruiting Virginia, Washington, D.C., and central North Carolina. The Mooresville, N.C., native earned his B.A. in secondary education from Clemson in 1975.

Woody McCorvey is the newest member of the Tiger coaching staff, he is in his second year of coaching the tight ends. He came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was the defensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a masters degree in health, leisure and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Chuck Reedy has coached Clemson's running backs for the last six years. The St. Augustine, FL., native also recruits for the Tigers in southeast South Carolina, south Georgia and Florida. He earned two letters in football from Appalachian State where he graduated in 1971 with a degree in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1978.

Nelson Stokley has been the Tigers' offensive coordinator for the past four years. He came to Clemson on January 18, 1980 after serving as offensive coordinator for Virginia Tech. The 1968 graduate of LSU was the school's starting quarterback from 1965-67 and then served the fine southern institution as an assistant coach from 1968-75.

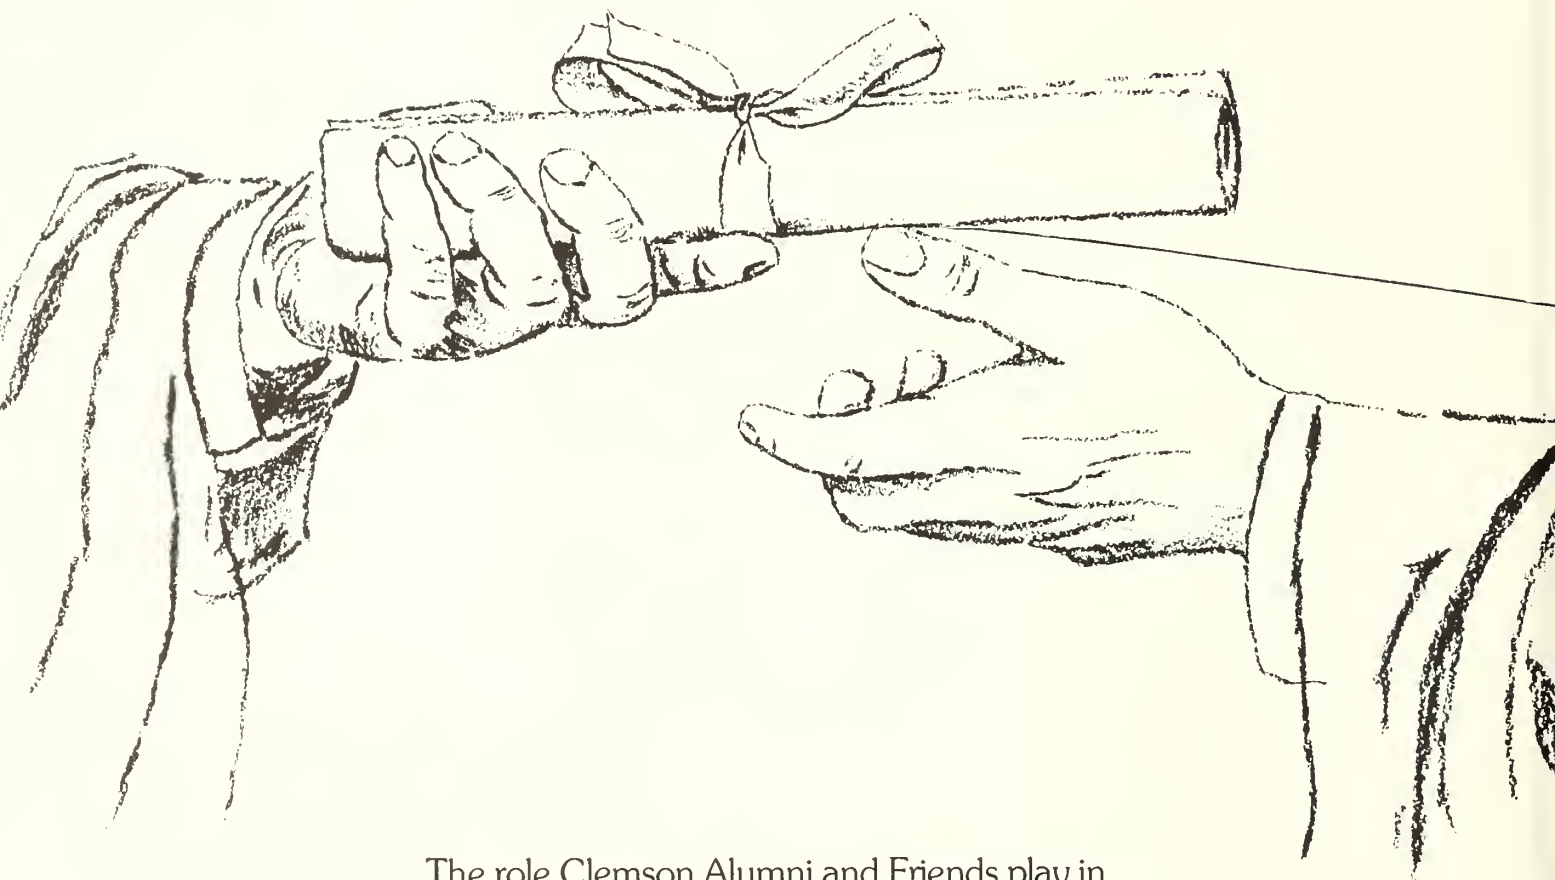

Larry Van Der Heyden has coached some fine offensive linemen during his five years at Clemson and is a major reason why the Tigers' ground game has been so successful. The offensive line coach joined the staff on January 5, 1979 from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He has also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and masters degrees at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball.

Tommy West coaches the defensive ends and recruits middle and south Georgia for the Tigers. He is in his third year at Clemson, he came from Appalachian State University on July 10, 1982. The Gainesville, GA, native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball for the Volunteers. A fine all-around athlete, he was drafted out of high school by baseball's Chicago Cubs.

IPTAY

IPTAY has begun the second 50 years of a long and successful journey. From a very modest beginning in 1934 with only 162 members, this athletic scholarship fund-raising group has grown into 20,000 loyal Tiger supporters. IPTAY is recognized as the "Number-One" group of its kind in America. But what is behind the success of IPTAY?

The reason is people — people who are committed to a successful program at Clemson University, both on and off the field. Professors, athletes, administrators, managers, trainers, alumni, and friends all play a part in this success. The results which have been produced are something we can all be proud of in this search for excellence at Clemson University.

The on-going search for excellence in the academic area at Clemson University has resulted in the awarding of the Fulbright Scholarship for graduates to study overseas to 5 of 6 Clemson applicants. In addition, a Guggenheim Scholarship was awarded to another Clemson graduate. Of the 320 valedictorians in South Carolina high schools, over 120 were accepted to Clemson University. Furthermore, a building program is being instituted on campus that will include a new chemistry building, as well as the expansion of several other departments.

That search for excellence is further exemplified by the efforts of the 20,000 IPTAY members who contributed to the total of $5.1 million in 1983. These monies enabled over 440 athletes, managers, and trainers to receive scholarship aid to attend Clemson.

These athletes also have the strong commitment to excellence that Clemson supporters both deserve and desire. The Tiger football team has the best three-year record in college football at 30-2-2. Soccer, men's cross country, women's cross country, baseball, men's tennis, and women's tennis were all Top 20 teams, while men's cross country, women's and men's tennis were conference champions in 1983-84. Swimming and wrestling enjoyed their best seasons ever. There were 13 All-Americans and 56 all-conference performers competing for Clemson, in addition to the 18 athletes that qualified for the Olympic trials. There is no doubt that Clemson athletics enjoyed one of its best years ever.

IPTAY certainly was a major reason for these accomplishments. But, what is IPTAY other than scholarships? And, how has Clemson University benefited from these 50 years of service? The Clemson IPTAY Club has a board of directors led by President Bill Reaves, Vice President Lawrence Starkey, and Secretary-Treasurer Jim Patterson. Under the direction of these men, the main purpose of IPTAY continues to be raising monies for athletic scholarships. Thanks to the foresight of Athletic Director Bill McLellan and the support of the Board of Directors, many improvements have taken place on campus which are of benefit, not only to athletes and fans of athletics, but to the academic area of our University as well.

Specific areas of improvement include installing lights on Riggs Field; building a new baseball facility, with lights to be added in 1985; funding Tiger Band travel; funding the annual Sport and Society Symposium; donating over $200,000 to the President's Fund; and developing the East Beach area enjoyed by all Clemson students.

The attitude of Clemson people, especially those associated with IPTAY, is that "success is a journey, not a destination." The search for excellence continues at Clemson and, thanks to the continued support of 20,000 IPTAY supporters, the excellence in athletics will continue. As IPTAY begins the second 50 years of service to Clemson, one may wonder what the future holds. According to Joe Turner, Executive Secretary of IPTAY, "the love, sincerity, and support of the Clemson people give a unique quality to Clemson. It is for this reason the success the Tigers now enjoy will continue."

After 22 consecutive years of record-breaking support, there is no doubt that Clemson will remain "NUMBER ONE."

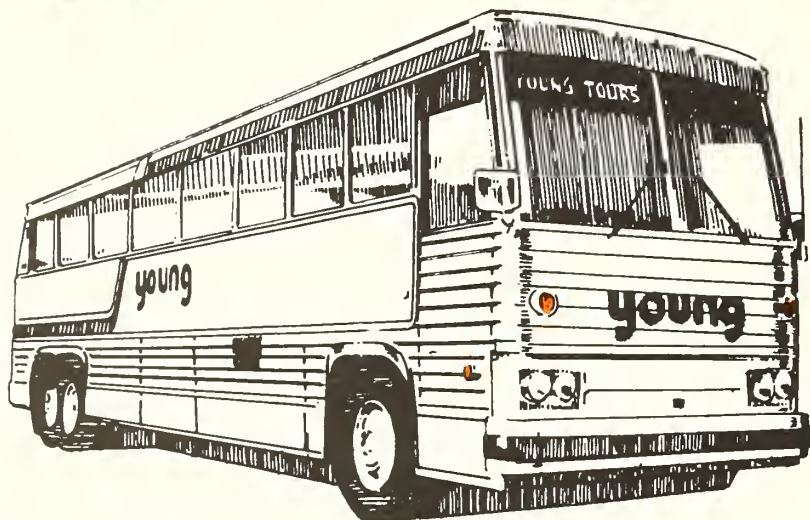

Thank you, IPTAY.

For the fifth time in the last six years the Clemson all-around sports program has been ranked in the top 10 in the nation. The survey, conducted by the Knoxville Journal, takes into account national rankings in selected sports. Women's sports are not included in this poll, which has been in existence since 1971.

This poll is a good index of the rise of Clemson athletics over the years. The Tigers were first ranked in the survey in 1975-76 with a number-20 finish. In the 1978-79 poll, Clemson climbed to fourth, and in 1979-80 gained a number-three ranking, the school's highest ever. Three years ago Clemson was fourth and in 1981-82 the Tigers picked up the number-five rating.

Last year five Clemson sports were top 20 teams, headed by the cross country team's number-four rating. The ranking was the highest recorded by the Tiger harriers, and Coach Stan Narewski was rewarded with National Co-Coach-of-the-Year honors. The Clemson football and soccer teams were 11th in final polls, which gave Clemson the lead in the poll after the fall. But tennis and golf were Clemson's only top 20 teams thereafter.

Lady Tiger teams also had a good year. The women's cross country team was seventh nationally, while the women's tennis team was 15th in the final poll.

You can use Marvess® Olefin yarn for more fabrics than you thought... for less money than you think.

As the most extensive product line in terms of colors and deniers, Phillips Marvess olefin multifilament yarn sets the standard for the upholstery industry. But this technically superior yarn also has a wide variety of other fabric applications.

Fabrics for window curtains, shower curtains, drapes, mattress ticking, indoor/outdoor furniture covering, bedspreads. The list goes on and on.

So do the benefits of using this strong, yet lightweight yarn. For example, Marvess olefin has the lowest specific gravity of any fiber, which reduces the number of ends and picks needed per square inch. Thus it produces more yards per pound of fabric. And that means big savings to you.

Our non-allergenic, fade-resistant yarn also has extremely low moisture absorption, so less energy is required in the drying process — which means additional savings. And because of its high strength, wet or dry, fabrics don't need to be overconstructed.

Last, but certainly not least, Phillips Fibers has the largest plant capacity in the U.S. devoted exclusively to producing textile olefin filament yarns for the home furnishings industry. And the price is competitive, but then, that's what you'd expect from one of the performance companies.

For more information and service that's second to none, contact Olefin Fibers Marketing, Phillips Fibers Corporation, P.O. Box 66, Greenville, SC 29602. Call: 803/242-6600.

Clemson Visitors Center Offers Front Door to Campus

For visitors to Clemson University, the new Visitors Center offers recreational information, travel and entertainment directions and, most importantly, an introduction to the state's land-grant university, all in an atmosphere of orange carpet hospitality. For those who are considering investing the next few years of their lives in the university, the center, with its audio-visual displays, guided tours and numerous services, is a priceless source of information and orientation.

Located in historic Tillman Hall, at the gateway to the university, the center is the first stop for tourists as well as prospective students and their families. It provides information on everything from university programs and student life to recreational activities, travel directions and shopping.

"The university has needed a focal point for visitor information services for a long time," says John Allen, director of Clemson's visitor programs.

The Visitors Center has met that need. Since opening in June, the center has served more than 1,300 people from 33 states and seven foreign countries. And each person has gotten his full share of Clemson hospitality.

"Every visitor represents a new opportunity to let people know about the university and what it means to South Carolina and this region," Allen says.

Staffing the center are Janis Moore, manager, and Joy Skelton, assistant manager. Both know the Clemson area well.

The Moore family lived in Clemson for five years during the 1960s when Janis' father was head of the civil engineering department. After graduating from Clemson in 1967, Janis earned a master's of English from the University of Virginia in 1970. Last fall she left a teaching career in Virginia to become manager of the Visitors Center.

Joy Skelton graduated from Clemson in 1981 with a bachelor's degree in political science. After graduation, she served in positions with the Registrar's Office and the IPTAY Office before becoming the Visitors Center's assistant manager.

Campus tours conducted by the professional staff and the student University Guide Service branch out from the new center to explore Clemson's numerous landmarks, such as Fort Hill, home of John C. Calhoun and university founder Thomas Green Clemson.

Visitors also can see Hanover House, the 18th century home of French Huguenot Paul de St. Julien. Originally constructed in Berkeley County in 1716, the house was rebuilt on the Clemson campus in 1941.

Tours also include Memorial Stadium, the largest college football facility east of the Mississippi. And for visitors who would rather relax in the grass and enjoy the scenery, the horticulture gardens feature 70 acres of ornamental azaleas, camellias, wildflowers and natural wonders along numerous foot trails.

Self-guided audio-cassette tours are provided by the Visitors Center and specialized group tours of the university, Calhoun Mansion and Hanover House are available upon request.

"We want the center to be the front door to the campus," says Allen. "And we want it known that our door is always open."

Mike Eppley

By Tim Bourret

The scene is a management class in an academic building on the Clemson campus in the second week of January, 1982. Prior to the traditional role call, the professor asks the class for a show of hands of those ebullient students who rooted the Tigers onto their first national championship at the Orange Bowl just a week before. Only two people did not raise a hand. One was a female who had family commitments at Christmas, the other is now one of the top quarterbacks in America.

Mike Eppley, a red-shirt senior from Charlotte, NC, wasn't even in Miami that hot January 1 evening when Clemson defeated Nebraska 22-15. He viewed the game with players and managers on the Clemson basketball team, a squad he was a significant member of at the time. In 1981 Eppley red-shirted the football season, then joined the basketball team on October 15.

"I remember watching the game with Brian O'Rourke, Dave Jenkin (managers), David Shaffer, Milan Belich and Marvin Key in a room in the Ramada Inn in Raleigh," said Eppley. "I wished that I was at the Orange Bowl at the time even though I knew I was red-shirting and couldn't get in the game. I still wanted to be on the field for the game for the national championship.

"But, I got over that feeling in a hurry because the next night I played a lot in an ACC game for the first time, against N.C. State. I like to compete and the ability to play basketball in the ACC that year kept my spirits up. I played more and more basketball that season."

Eppley had a fine year in 1981-82 as he captured three team awards, (assists, defense and hustle) and had many standout games against Virginia and Ralph Sampson. He was the quarterback of the Clemson basketball offense and teamed with Vincent Hamilton for one of the best young backcourt combinations in the ACC.

As the fall of 1982 began, Mike Eppley was considered to be a Clemson basketball player who was also on the football team. Soon he became a two-sport starter. "I was a little discouraged as the 1982 season began. I had confidence that I could play and do well, but Homer (Jordan) was back for another year and he had a great junior season. I was playing well as the number-two man, but didn't see myself getting a break."

However, on Homecoming of 1982, Eppley got his break. Jordan was unable to play against Kentucky and Eppley got the call. "I was putting my lunch tray back in the holder on a Thursday afternoon and Coach Ford came up behind me. He whispered, 'Mike, you're going to start on Saturday.' I thought he was kidding at first until he explained things. I couldn't tell anyone, and not even my teammates would find out until practice.

"I kept the promise except for telling my parents. I didn't even tell my girlfriend in Charlotte. We had a fight that week and she was not coming down for the game so I didn't tell her. She was outside washing her car when the game was going on and a mutual friend came by and told her I was playing well. She was very surprised and ran into the house to listen!"

That Kentucky game was certainly the turning point of Mike Eppley's football career. "We always had confidence Mike could do the job," said Danny Ford. "We tested him early by calling a pass on the first play of the game and he threaded the needle. That set the tone for the day and his confidence seemed to spread to the rest of the team." Clemson went on to a 24-6 victory.

Eppley continued to see much playing time in 1982 as Jordan went down with a knee injury. He started five games overall, all Clemson victories, and guided the option offense with aplomb. "Mike is a born leader who makes the other players play above their capabilities," said Ford. "We didn't lose a beat with him at quarterback." Clemson went on to a 9-1-1 season, a feat that was duplicated last season.

The 6-2 signal caller was the starter in every game in 1983 and he finished third in the nation in passing efficiency, the highest ranking ever by a Clemson quarterback. He also established a season record for touchdown passes (13) and has now led Clemson to a 16-3-1 record as a starting quarterback.

In just seven weeks Eppley's public lifestyle at Clemson will tone down considerably. Suddenly, after four and a half years of a hectic schedule that would make a Chicago Board of Trade broker's job seem peaceful, the 3.5 student will have free time. Time to lay on the Y-Beach, attend the Bengal Ball and go on a true spring break for recreation, not recuperation.

"I'm looking forward to doing a lot of things with people outside of the football atmosphere, and getting to know other students," said Eppley. "It will be good to spend a full Christmas vacation at home with my family and take a trip for break somewhere without having to worry about getting back for spring workouts.

"I'm also going out to spring practice once in a while and watch the young guys work. Anthony (Parete) and I have talked about that and going by to talk with Nelson Stokley (quarterback coach). We have a great relationship with him, but it is, of course, limited to the player-coach situation. But, once we are finished playing it will be good to drop by his house as former players and talk about everything under the sun.

"In general it will be great to just do things on the spur of the moment."

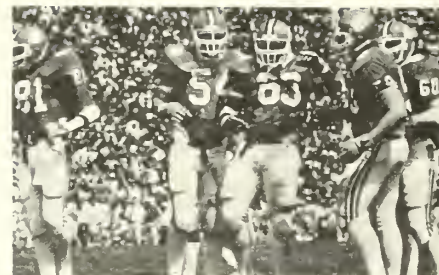

Eppley has more career options than George Plimpton. There's the USFL, "if it is the right situation," Canadian football, MBA school, or private business to consider. He will graduate in December with a GPA in the 3.3 range in management, that in itself would be good enough to get him started just about anywhere he wants.

And, if he does not get off to the best start in the world in his chosen field, he'll get his break, and make the most of it.

Mike Eppley replaced Homer Jordan in the 1982 Kentucky game, and has been one of the nation's most efficient passers.

Senior Offensive Linemen

By Kassie Kessinger

The men in the trenches spend most of their careers toiling in the shadows of the so-called "name players." But were it not for the unheralded offensive linemen opening the holes for the running backs and providing the quarterback time to hit his target, the so-called "name players" probably would never receive their instant name recognition with the fans and media. So, even though you don't hear much about the individuals playing along the offensive line, the general consensus among most coaches is it's the most difficult position to play in football. And despite its demands, little glory is associated with the faceless men in the pits.

But Clemson's senior dominated unit may garner a few more headlines this season. While junior Steve Reese, an All-America candidate, appears to have the most overall talent among the offensive linemen, he has tremendous support from a veteran cast, giving this unit ample depth at every position. Coach Danny Ford lost only one starter in the offensive line via the graduation route in '83, James Farr. But Farr was a big loss because he was a third-team All-American and winner of the Jacob's Blocking Trophy, emblematic of the top offensive lineman in the ACC, and already he is a one-year veteran of the USFL. So with 11 lettermen returning, including six seniors, this year's offensive line has many expectations to live up to, namely, can they be the best ever at Clemson?

Now in his sixth season in Tigertown, offensive line coach Larry Van Der Heyden feels this group certainly has the potential to be the best ever, but knows they will have to prove so during the season. "I believe they have the potential to be one of the best Clemson's ever had," said Van Der Heyden. "They certainly have the ability and the experience so I expect them to be pretty good, but they have to play up to their potential. A champion has to prove he's a champion every day and in every game. And that's what these guys are going to have to do, prove every time they go out on the field that they are going to do the job."

To build a solid foundation, you need to start with the offensive line. And if that unit has a bad outing on game day, everyone else surely will. Ironically enough, linemen are the forgotten men on the gridiron. The major reason for anonymity along the front may be due to no comparative statistics, such as yards gained, tackles made, or passes caught, to indicate a superior performance. But according to Van Der Heyden, "what motivates the offensive line is knowing that we had a running back rush for over 100 yards, or that we protected the quarterback and no one got to him."

While our eyes are affixed on the passer and receiver combination, making that scintillating connection, we fail to see the on-going struggle in the trenches that sets up the pass connection, ultimately sending us screaming to our feet. Or when the running back gallops to glory let's not forget who punched the hole that he slithered through. If quarterbacks and running backs fail to appreciate their offensive linemen, agony rather than glory shall rule more than they care, for a smart backfield man gives credit to the guys upfront.

Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton gave watches as "thank you" gifts to his linemen after the 1977 season, when he was the NFL's top rusher. And Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys gave cowboy boots to his offensive linemen, when he won a Dallas player of the week program. In 1973, O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills made sure his linemen were present at a postgame press conference following his record-breaking performance of 2,003 yards in a season.

Since the Tigers have an abundance of experience, depth and leadership in their line, the possibility for a more wide-open offense is greater. In fact, these seniors are potential professionals, especially if they have an exceptional campaign. "Having a senior dominated group enables us to do more on offense because the more experienced you are the more things you can do," said Van Der Heyden.

Clemson has successfully utilized the NCAA red-shirt rules to everyone's advantage over the past couple of years. Among this year's senior line, not including tight end K.D. Dunn, only two of the five did not red-shirt, Dale Swing and Andy Cheatham. With Reese and Cheatham both back following a season of splitting time at right guard, Reese has replaced Farr at left guard and Cheatham is Clemson's starter at right guard.

A 6-4, 250-pound native of Mableton, GA, Cheatham is the fourth strongest player on the entire squad with a 1480 figure. With the strength program being an integral part of a lineman's development, Cheatham has reaped dividends from many long and arduous hours spent in Clemson's weight room. He is ranked in the top eight on the Clemson team in the incline (330), squat (520) and clean lifts (325). With a time of 4.85, he is tied with Dale Swing for the fourth best 40 time among offensive linemen.

Coach Van Der Heyden has been very pleased with Cheatham's contributions to the Tiger program. "Although I don't really feel like Andy has played up to his potential, we are hoping that this will be his best year ever," said Van Der Heyden. "He runs well, moves well, has good work habits, and is a very coachable youngster."

The man handling the ball on each count is Dale Swing, the fifth strongest player on the Clemson team overall at 1,478. A native of Lexington, NC, the 6-3, 250-pound center started every game last year. And, Swing did an outstanding job under the circumstances, according to his position coach. "Dale was pressed into regular duty last year when starting center Cary Massaro decided to give up football," explained Van Der Heyden, "and Dale did a heck of a job."

"Dale has all kinds of ability. He has excellent quickness, strength, and he's intelligent, but I don't think he has yet played up to his potential. I probably have more confidence in Dale than he has in himself, and if he ever realizes what kind of ability he has, he really could be super. I hope this is going to happen in his senior year, and so far he has been playing with a lot more confidence. Having played all of last year has given him added confidence. But more importantly, having to practice against William Perry every day can't help but make you a better player.”

59 Reid Ingle has been a starter for most of the last three seasons.

Three seniors are rotating at tackle, a system designed to keep them fresh on each series. Reid Ingle starts at left tackle, Joe Ellis operates at right tackle, while Jeff Cruce backs them up at both spots.

At 6-6, 270-pounds, Ingle is the second biggest offensive lineman on the squad and is a bonafide All-ACC candidate this year. The Calhoun, GA product averaged 59 plays per game in '83, the highest total on the team. He red-shirted the 1981 season and has battled back from a series of injuries by working extremely hard in the off-season to make himself a better player.

“Reid has probably made as much progress as any lineman we’ve had at Clemson,” revealed Van Der Heyden. “The red-shirt year really helped Reid as he has matured a lot, mentally and physically. Reid has a lot of pride in what he tries to do and always seeks to do the very best of his ability. He’s a very coachable young man, and I think that’s one of the reasons he’s been able to make such tremendous strides.”

Perhaps the best all-around offensive lineman is Joe Ellis, another performer with all-conference potential. The 6-4, 260-pound Toms River, NJ native was singled out as the top offensive lineman in 1984 spring drills by Coach Danny Ford. Ellis started six of the last seven games of 1983 when Jeff Cruce was injured, and graded at 92 percent against Virginia this year, best among the Clemson players.

“Joe has really come on and if he continues on his current course he’ll definitely be an all-conference player,” commented Van Der Heyden.

“He’s better in probably both the run-blocking and drive-blocking, with his biggest asset his ability to drive-block. Joe was a highly recruited prep player and has shown tremendous improvement since coming to Clemson. He was hampered a bit last year when he had surgery on his shoulder, but with a year gone by he has really improved his overall strength, especially in his upper body.”

Another veteran seeking to have a solid final campaign is Jeff Cruce. If the Lake City, FL product can remain healthy and avoid the injury bug that has plagued his career, he should be a vital cog in Clemson’s quest for another national title. He started the 1983 season as the number-one tackle but was temporarily sidelined at mid-season with a knee bruise, relinquishing his position to Ellis. The 6-7, 260-pounder has the second best clean lift on the team at 329 pounds and ranks ninth in overall strength.

“You can consider him a starter just like Ellis and Ingle without any question,” emphasized Van Der Heyden, “his technique has suffered a bit because he’s been injured, but he’s made enormous improvement since last season. I’ve been impressed with his concentration and dedication in the off-season in getting himself not only physically prepared but mentally ready.”

The outlook for a positive season rests with the entire offensive line, not just the seniors. But by the time a player reaches his senior year he’s been through it all, according to Van Der Heyden. “He should feel confident that there isn’t anybody that he can’t line up against and doesn’t have a chance to block. There shouldn’t be anything that he hasn’t seen before. That’s why confidence is so very, very important, because you can’t go out there and think you can block someone, you’ve got to know you can block that guy across from you. That’s the difference between being a young, inexperienced line and a veteran line.”

The leadership is evident among this veteran unit, but it is a quiet leadership. “I think most of the team will try to lead by example rather than by being a strong vocal type, and I’m not so sure that isn’t best,” Van Der Heyden said. “A lot of people can talk a good game, but I’d rather have people play a good game.”

As a unit members of the offensive line probably meet more and watch more film than any other group. It takes a unique individual to be an offensive lineman, not just a physically stout candidate, but an outstanding competitor with a good attitude, a guy who takes pride in his work and can be depended on week after week. “The offensive line as a group is probably the closest knit group on the football team, and I think that is tremendous,” praised Van Der Heyden. “It is such a demanding position, so much is required of you, and it takes so much repetition. It takes a special person, a dedicated, hard working youngster, that truly wants to play. Those youngsters are awfully hard to find and that is why I think they do so well, because most of them are so self-motivated.”

So the next time you catch yourself celebrating in the stands following a Clemson score, don’t just single out the guy who ended up in the endzone with the ball, remember also, this gutty group of seniors up front who gladly took the punishment that helped set up the score.

Larry Van Der Heyden is a tireless worker who has been at Clemson since 1979.

CIMARRON '84 THIS ONE'S GOT THE TOUCH.

The Cadillac touch. It's Electronic Fuel Injection, matched by a tenacious Touring Suspension that comes to grips with the road. It's leather-faced front bucket seats with lumbar support behind a leather-trimmed steering wheel that lets you know you're in control. It's new grille and taillight styling. Laser-accurate quality fits. It's Cimarron '84...with something no other car in its class has. The Cadillac touch.

BEST OF ALL...IT'S A CADILLAC.

Let's Get It Together...Buckle Up.

Edgar Brown

By Lee Plumblee

"It is well to remember that the accumulation of wealth, of power, of public office, does not always bring happiness...; but unselfish service to one's state, to one's nation, which in the final analysis is to your fellow man, rendered in the fear of God, will bring that serenity of faith in the democratic process without which life is but an empty effort."

Who penned these words you ask? Jefferson? Lincoln? F.D.R.? The author of these words was the man honored during pre-game ceremonies today — Edgar Allan Brown. Edgar Brown rendered that "unselfish service" to his state as a legislator and state Senator for more than a half-century and as a member and chairman of Clemson University's Board of Trustees for 40 years. And through the Edgar A. Brown Foundation, his service to his fellow man continues, providing scholarships that allow students to gain higher education at Clemson University.

The Francis I sterling silver tea service donated to the University today was given by his granddaughter's family, Mr. and Mrs. David Craig. It originally was a gift to Sen. Brown from the people of South Carolina and his colleagues in the General Assembly, in grateful appreciation of his years of public service. The service will be an addition of significant value to the collection of historical material and memorabilia already on display in the Edgar Allan Brown Room of Clemson's Robert Muldrow Cooper Library.

Brown's beginnings showed the promise of success. The Barnwell native attended Graniteville Academy in Aiken, one of the state's most respected secondary schools, for only two years before withdrawing to attend Osborne Business College. There he learned so quickly that he again withdrew before graduation and began to study law on his own at night while clerking in a law firm during the day. He was admitted to the South Carolina Bar in June 1910, and from there his career record reads like a book on how to succeed in government.

After serving as lieutenant colonel and aide-de-camp to Governor Robert A. Cooper, Brown was elected to the South Carolina House of Representatives in 1921. By 1925 he had become Speaker. From there, he moved on to the state Senate, where his 43-year tenure included the chairmanship of the Finance Committee from 1942-1972. He was President Pro Tempore of the Senate the last two years he served there.

A strong believer in good interstate relations, Brown also served as chairman of the S.C. Commission on Interstate Cooperation and as chairman of the governing board of the Council of State Governments.

During his years in the Senate, Brown also became a trustee of Clemson University. He was elected trustee from 1934-47 and a life trustee from 1948 until his death in 1975, a period during which he also served as chairman of the board from 1966-72.

Brown helped pilot Clemson through what former University President Robert C. Edwards calls, "the most crucial years of the school's history, other than those preceding its founding." During his years on the board, Brown saw Clemson evolve from an all-male military college of about 1,200 students into a co-ed, civilian university of more than 10,000 undergraduates and graduate students.

Brown was also instrumental in ensuring the peaceful racial desegregation of Clemson in 1963. In contrast to the sometimes bloody events in other Southern states, that milestone event was so well-handled at Clemson that the Saturday Evening Post called it "Integration with Dignity."

Toward the end of his career, in 1969, Brown created the Edgar A. Brown Foundation, which Edwards today chairs. The other trustee is Virgil Duffie, Jr. who says Brown earmarked the endowment exclusively for "charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes at Clemson University." By so doing, the Senator ensured that his legacy of service and his dedication to education would succeed his years.

Since its establishment, the Foundation has received funds donated to honor Brown as well as funds from his estate. It has also granted almost half-a-million dollars in scholarships to more than 300 students.

Joseph Mancino Jr., a Brown Scholar and 1980 graduate of Clemson, calls the scholarship, "the beginning of everything for me." The endowment made possible his education at Clemson, which in turn allowed him to earn a master's of business administration degree and begin a successful career as a financial analyst with the Shell Oil Co. in Houston.

The history of the Brown Scholarship is a chronicle of happy endings. Angelina Spearman Howard, the first recipient of the scholarship in 1969, today directs the communications division of the Institute of Nuclear Power Operations in Atlanta. She called Sen. Brown, who once loaned her some of his personal books, "just a wonderful man."

Sam Ingram would agree with Howard. A 1976 graduate of Clemson, Ingram is a practicing attorney in Dillon. He visited Brown just months before the Senator's death in 1975 to thank him for his scholarship. "There's no way that I could have gone to Clemson without that help," Ingram says.

Career successes aren't the only happy endings among Brown Scholarship recipients. Just ask Steve and Leticia Schwartz. Steve, a May 1984 graduate, and Tish, who graduated in 1983, are more than fellow Brown Scholars. They're husband and wife. The couple resides in Charleston where Steve is a medical student and Tish, a champion water skier, is director of recreational therapy at Baker Hospital.

At least one current Brown Scholar promises to add to this success story. Donald W. Rodgers should graduate from Clemson in 1985 with a degree in electrical engineering. That might not sound too phenomenal, but consider this: in 1985 Rodgers will be 18 years old, making him the youngest alumnus in Clemson history. He left Daniel High School during the 11th grade after teaching himself calculus and physics, and entered Clemson on 1983 with 37 semester hours' credit.

The Edgar A. Brown Foundation continues to render unselfish service in the spirit of its founder, a man who earned the nickname "Mr. Good Government" from his peers. Brown once called his successful battle for educational television one of his "most shining stars." There are 300 people who might disagree with that appraisal. There's little doubt about what the most shining star is for them. And for the 52 current Edgar Brown Scholars, the happy endings are just beginning.

The Edgar Brown family will donate this silver service to the University at pregame this afternoon.

Today In Tiger Football

By Jeff Rhodes

Today is October 6, 1984, the 280th day of the year. There are 86 calendar days, six football Saturdays, and 49 days of football left in the year. On this date in:

1923—As the 1924 Taps reported: "Newberry, always noted for its scrappy teams, brought an eleven to Clemson that was a vast improvement over their last season's team. (Clemson won in 1922, 57-0)...When they (the Tigers) found themselves, they proceeded to devour the Indians properly, the final score being Clemson 32, Newberry 0. It was in this game, that Pat Harmon made a sensational 70-yard run through the entire Newberry team for a touchdown after intercepting a pass. Brattton Williams was a bright star in the Clemson firmament with his pile-driving smashes through the Newberry line."

1928—The Tigers headed to Drake Field in Auburn, AL, to try for their second straight win over the "other" Tigers. A 155-pound sophomore tailback named Johnnie Justus was the hero this day as he scored the only touchdown in the 6-0 Clemson win. The game was a defensive struggle throughout, and a rainstorm further "dampened" the offenses. Late in the first half, Justus intercepted an Auburn aerial at their 25 and ran down the right sideline. At the 10, Justus side-stepped three Auburn players and ran in for the score. Neither team mounted any offense for the rest of the game and Clemson held on for the win.

1934—In Durham, NC, it was a reunion of sorts as Clemson faced Duke for the first time. Both Jess Neely of Clemson and Wallace Wade of Duke were assistants at Alabama, but this was the first time the coaches faced each other. The Tigers never got untracked, though, as Duke won 20-6. Corky Cornelius, who played the game for Duke despite a severe charleyhorse, scored twice in just 10 minutes of play that provided the difference. Randy Hinson's score from the two on a reverse was the only Clemson tally.

1946—Here was another defensive struggle for Clemson, and again the Tigers fell, this time to N.C. State, 14-7. In the second quarter, Clemson's Dutch Leverman ran behind the right guard, cut right and set sail down the sideline for a 33-yard touchdown. On the ensuing kickoff, State's Howard Turner returned the ball 98 yards to knot the score. Turner would later score from the 10. The Tigers lost three opportunities to score late in the game, twice on downs and one time on a fumble.

1951—Once again the Tigers were involved in a real slugfest, but prevailed over N.C. State in a night game in Raleigh, NC. Despite the 6-0 score, Clemson's defense was dominant, as State did not get a first down until the third quarter. On Clemson's only sustained march, Billy Hair tossed to Glenn Smith from 23 yards to cap the drive. Pete Cook killed two State drives with interceptions and Jim Shirley carried 36 times for 133 yards to highlight play for Clemson.

1956—For the fifth time in six contests played on this date, Clemson found itself in a dogfight. Clemson and N.C. State scratched to a scoreless tie through three quarters of fog in Memorial Stadium. In the fourth quarter, though, State recovered a fumble at the Clemson 29, and after several plays, Dick Hunter ran to the four and he lateraled to Wally Prince who scored. Joel Wells tied the score on a short run after gaining 23 yards of a 51-yard march. State fumbled the kickoff and Charlie Horne carried over from the 10 to give Clemson the 13-7 win.

1962—On a beautiful day at Bowman Gray Stadium in Winston-Salem, Clemson dominated Wake Forest, 24-7. The Tigers outgained the Deacons by 172 yards and Clemson ground out 246 yards on the ground. After a Rodney Rogers field goal opened the second quarter, Mack Matthews intercepted a John Mackovic (yes, the current coach of the Kansas City Chiefs) pass that set up Pat Crain's three-yard run. Matthews would later score on an 88-yard punt return, which is still the longest punt return in Clemson history. Crain would conclude the scoring with an 11-yard run that capped a 69-yard drive.

1973—In Red Parker's initial campaign, the Tigers faced a tough Texas A&M team in Death Valley, and the home team ended up on the short side of a 30-15 score. The Tigers jumped ahead early on a 16-yard pass from Ken Pengitore to Bennie Cunningham and a 24-yard field goal from Ronnie Burgess. Texas A&M pulled ahead at the half, though, on the strength of Bubba Bean's 78-yard run. Pengitore added Clemson's last points on a one-yard sneak, but by that time, the outcome of the game had been decided.

1979—Danny Ford's first Homecoming game as a head coach was successful as the Tigers wore down Virginia, 17-7. Lester Brown was the big gun for the Tigers as the "Rubber Duck" rushed 21 times for 125 yards and scored on touchdown runs of 15 and 17 yards. Obed Ariri added a 22-yard field goal to wrap up the Tigers' scoring. Greg Taylor helped the Cavaliers avoid the shutout with his two-yard touchdown run.

1984—Clemson faces North Carolina for the first time on this date.

1990—The next available Saturday, October 6.

Lester Brown led Clemson over Virginia the last time Clemson played on October 6.

DO A GOOD TURN FOR ENERGY BILLS.

Turn your thermostat to 68° or lower for heating, and 78° or higher for cooling. For every degree you maintain your home below 68° and above 78° you reduce your operating costs. And that can be a big turn for the better. We'll be happy to give you a free booklet full of energy-saving tips like this. Just call your local SCE&G office.

SCE&G. PEOPLE PUTTING THEIR ENERGY TO WORK FOR YOU.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck.) These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

Announcements will inform you of special hazards – heat, bees, etc.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interferes with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS

If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and in physical exertion. Be certain if you have any pre-existing medical conditions that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of early warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting.

Recognize that our most common serious medical problem at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will continue to always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2110.

Clemson players, coaches and fans are famous for mustering up big appetites. That's when they want the best U.S.D.A. Graded Choice heavy grain-fed Western Beef. Beef that's actually guaranteed to be tender. Every time. And BI-LO's Western Beef Market is where they find it — during football season, or any other time.

Gate 9, Death Valley

NOW THERE'S MORE

For the past three years the Orange Aids Catalog Marketing program has made it possible for Clemson Alumni and IPTAY members to shop at home for quality Clemson products. The Orange Aids program provides only officially licensed Clemson products and the proceeds go to support various programs at the University.

NOW THERE'S MORE. The Orange Aids Station is a new retail outlet for Clemson paraphernalia located adjacent to gate 9 on the Northwest corner of Memorial Stadium. The Orange Aids Station is an extension of the Clemson University Bookstore and will display all items which are in the Orange Aids catalog plus a broad selection of products previously available only in the bookstore. Tigers In The Crowd

Coy Cobb
Maitland, FL

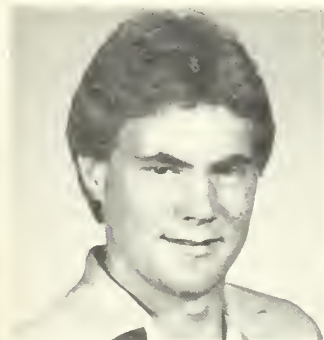

Cobb, 22, is an outstanding member of the Clemson men's swim team. Now in his senior season with the Tigers, Cobb participates in the sprint freestyle, backstroke, and butterfly. In addition to All-ACC honors in 1983, he was an All-American. He was the only Tiger to swim in the Men's NCAA meet in Indianapolis, IN, in March of 1983. Last season, he qualified for the United States Olympic Swim Team trials, along with teammate Jay Hebert. Cobb, an administrative management major, holds the Clemson record for the 50 meter freestyle (20.71), the 100 meter backstroke (49.87), the 200 meter backstroke (1:49.07), the 100 meter butterfly (49.53), and the 200 meter individual medley (1:51.96). He was a two-time All-ACC swimmer for the 1982-83 season.

Chuck Nash
St. Louis, MO

Nash, 22, is a 6-1, 178-pound striker for the Tiger soccer team. In 1982, he was second in scoring with 32 points off, 36 shots, 13 goals and six assists. He moved up to the team's leading scorer in 1983 with again 32 points off 60 shots, and 13 goals. Also in 1983, he started all of the 20 games he played in and had six assists and six winning goals. He was the first player that Coach I.M. Ibrahim recruited from the St. Louis area. Nash, an administrative management major, came to Clemson in 1981. Since his arrival, he has played in 58 games and started 46. Much of the responsibility for the offense was held by Nash last year and it is likely to be placed on his shoulders again this year.

Macfie, 21, is a senior in Clemson's golf program. He was a top high school prospect in 1981 and has twice since finished in the top five at the South Carolina Invitational. He won the Iron Duke Classic in 1983 with a total of 215 and placed third in the 1984 Hilton Head Learning Center Invitational. Macfie, who has lowered his season average by nearly two strokes a year over this three years at Clemson, reached his career low of 68 at the 1984 Tar Heel Invitational, where he placed second by one only stroke. He also finished second by only one stroke at the 1984 Furman Invitational. He received All-ACC honors and finished 43rd in his first NCAA appearance in 1984. Majoring in financial management, Macfie has the third lowest single season average (72.77) and the third lowest career average (74.31) in Clemson history.

Melissa Seigler
North Miami Beach, FL

Seigler, 21, is in her senior season with the Clemson women's tennis team. She is a two-time ACC singles champion and placed second in 1984 behind teammate Jane Forman. While playing for North Miami Beach High School, she led her team to a second-place finish in the state for the 1979-80 season. In 1980, she was ranked in the top 10 players in Florida and the top 80 in the United States. She had an eight-match winning streak during her freshman year and Clemson has gone undefeated in three seasons of conference play. Her individual ACC record is 29-0. Joining forces with Jane Neville, the two members of the 1984 ACC championship doubles team went 16-7 for the year and 9-1 in the ACC.

Stijn Jaspers
Aerenhout, Netherlands

Jaspers, 23, is a middle distance and cross country runner for men's track at Clemson. After receiving a military release to run for the Tigers, he placed 29th at the 1982 national championships, the second highest finish for a Clemson freshman. He was plagued with injuries his freshman season but still finished fourth in the 1500 meters at the ACC championship meet. Jaspers, a German major, placed second at the Netherlands National Cross Country Championship in the winter of 1983. The two-time all-conference and all-region runner also placed seventh at The Athletic Congress National Cross Country Championship with a time of 29:59.1. At the ACC meet last year, he placed first in the 10,000 meter run and first in the 5,000 meter run. He ended his 1984 season by qualifying for the Netherlands Olympic Track Team in the 5,000 meter run.

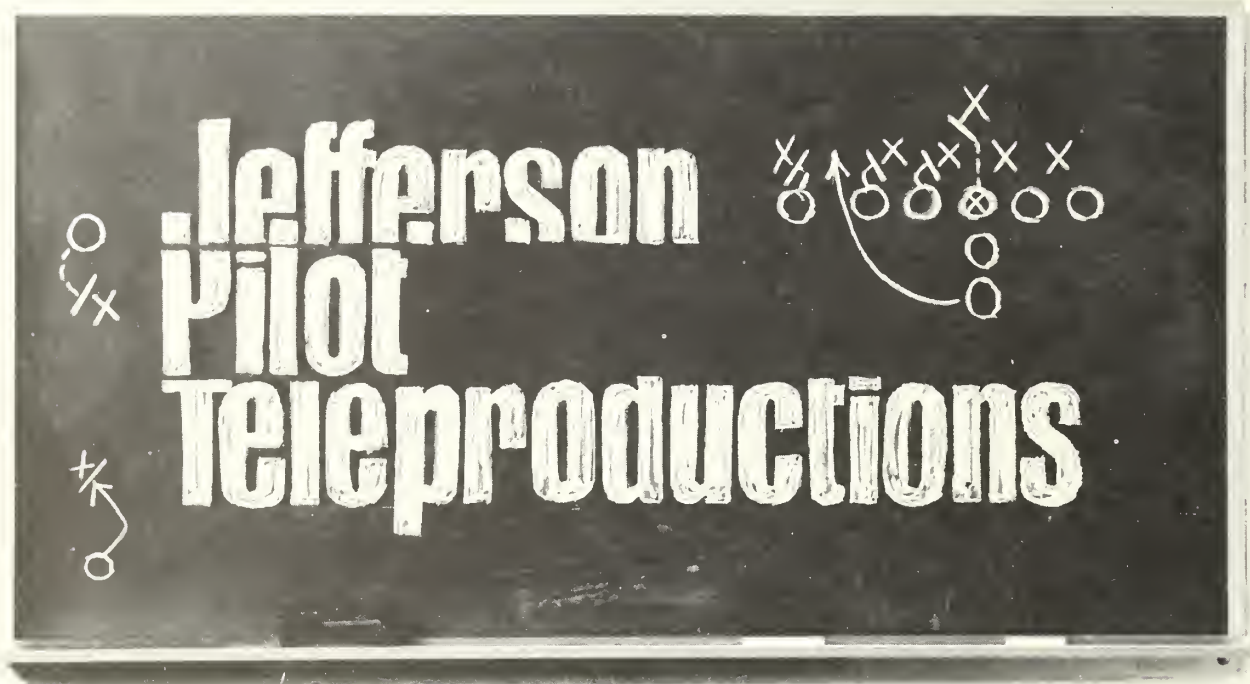

Stephanie Weikert
Henderson, KY

Weikert, 22, a 5-3, 100-pound senior runner for the Clemson women's track team, finished 35th at the National Cross Country Championships her freshman year. A two-time member of the All-ACC cross country team, she was a 1982 All-American with a 16th-place finish in the nationals and she was a member of the all-district III team the same year. Weikert, a French major, had a great cross country season going in 1983 until she suffered an injury at the District III meet which sidelined her for the rest of the season. At the 1984 ACC track meet at Chapel Hill, NC, the team placed fourth overall and Weikert placed third in the 5,000 meter run with a time of 17:26.8.

Tools Of The Trade

By Jill Mixon

Task: In one minute list the variety of football equipment you think Clemson uses during a game and a practice session.

Solution: Your time is up. I'm sure most of you listed shoulder pads, helmets, jerseys, and footballs. Granted all of these are obvious tools of the trade, but I'm sure you will discover on your brief tour of the practice field some little known elements that the Clemson Tigers utilize each and every day.

When the Tiger freshmen reported on August 2 (it seems like it gets earlier and earlier every year) a major concern of head trainer Fred Hoover was the dehydration of the players due to the rapid loss of body fluid in the 90-95° Clemson summertime heat. For this reason Hoover has come to rely upon readings taken from a wet-bulb globe temperature index (WBGT) and a psychrometer. Hoover explained, "Originally the WBGT was designed for use in the U.S. Army, but we have learned to adapt it for our own use."

Hoover continued to outline how the WBGT has aided the Clemson football program. "The way it works is not simple. Three regular thermometers constitute the makeup of the apparatus. The most important one is the wet bulb, which measures the atmosphere's ability to evaporate perspiration. The next one is called a black bulb, which is only a normal thermometer surrounded by a black ball. It measures the atmosphere's radiant heat. And, then there is a dry-bulb thermometer that takes the standard temperature reading.

"I then take 70 percent of the wet-bulb reading, one percent of the black-bulb and two percent of the dry-bulb. I then take their sum to come up with the total index. For example if the index reads 71-75°F then the manual says to alter the practice schedule as to provide rest periods every thirty minutes.

"The other related device is the sling psychrometer which measures the relative humidity. The RH measures the percentage of moisture present as compared with the air's capacity to hold water at any given dry-bulb temperature and is calculated from the difference between dry and wet-bulb readings. So, as you can see, the whole process is complex, but necessary to ensure the safety of our players," concluded Hoover.

In addition to the WBGT and psychrometer, the Tiger staff also makes use of four two-way communication headsets in order to run practice efficiently. Through the use of the headsets, the field captain, the timer, the gate guards, and the head equipment manager stay in constant contact. Eric Rivers, a student manager who serves as the gate guard at practice, wears one of the headsets, and he explained their use. "Let's say an emergency on the field occurs, and I receive a message over the headset that one of the coaches needs another piece of equipment. I then relay the message to the equipment room in Jervey, and they have the equipment brought without anyone having to come off the field. Therefore, no time is ever wasted away from practice."

If you were able to take a tour of the practice field behind Jervey Athletic Center, the most unusual 'tool of the trade' you would see would be the electrically operated ball machine, which is primarily used by the receiving corps. Carter Cardwell, graduate assistant coach who works with receiver coach Lawson Holland, related how the ball machine operates. "One football at a time is manually loaded from behind two rotating tires that spin inward. The machine is capable of 'throwing a pass' every two seconds and can be set for different speeds and angles depending on whether we are working on a low or high ball drill. The machine throws a perfect pass every time and can throw a relatively accurate 80-yard or better pass. It definitely is an arm-saver. Coach Holland and I would throw our arms out in a week's time if we didn't have the machine."

Cardwell continued, "By changing the angles of the machine some schools use it during punt catching drills. But, with Dale Hatcher's leg, such a machine would be in great competition."

If you wandered from the receiver station to where the placekickers work out on your practice field tour, you would be looking at a miniature goalpost in comparison to the one in Death Valley. It's not an optical illusion, the goalpost is half as wide as a regulation 23'4" goalpost. Bob Paulling, former Tiger placekicker who holds the Clemson record for most consecutive extra points in a career with 70, worked out on the little goalpost for four years. "When I started kicking at the little goalpost I really had to concentrate on my rhythm and accuracy because I only had half as much space with which to work. And, that is as much a reason for the conversion streak I had as anything," remarked Paulling.

Still related to the art of kicking is the tee, and Tiger booters make use of three different types. Anthony Parete, Tiger holder for the past three seasons stated, "We have a one-inch and two-inch tee that we use for field goals and extra points. In addition, there is a standard kickoff tee, we use that has waffle grips so the ball doesn't slide off. Last year Bob Paulling used a soccer-style tee, but neither Donald Igwebuike nor Don Inman use it this season even though both kick soccer-style," commented Parete.

The deep snappers and quarterbacks share a unique device, the weighted football. The weighted ball is two pounds, twice as much as a regulation ball, and it helps in developing the quarterbacks and snappers arm strength. Quarterback coach Nelson Stokley said, "My quarterbacks use the heavy footballs in the off-season to build up arm strength and flexibility. The concept of the heavy ball is the same as the principal behind a boxer using a medicine ball."

During a quick glance across the field on your tour you notice linebacker coach Les Herrin has his players facing seven padded steel posts. The posts simulate the line of scrimmage with one person creating backfield action. The purpose of the drill is for the linebackers to read the backfield motion and fill the gaps.

Then your eyes wander to Larry Van der Heyden's group of offensive linemen pushing a manually ridden blocking sled. The idea behind the drill is to establish team take off and explosion off the ball. The six points Van der Heyden stresses in the drill are: 1) steps (how many steps it takes to reach the sled); 2) snap count (everyone must know the proper signal); 3) line take off (everyone explodes off the football at the same time); 4) target (know the point where you should make contact); 5) Follow through 6) acceleration of feet.

Your attention is diverted from the offensive linemen by an equipment cart that buzzes by. The "mule", as it is known to the managers, is a hold-over from World War II. The cart, which was used as an ammunition transporter in the war, has four-wheel drive, four-wheel turn, and once had the capabilities to go under water.

Modern science has certainly infiltrated the football practice field and these big and little gadgets may be part of the reason for Clemson's incredible success. But, not everyone uses the latest equipment.

Over on the far field Tommy West is working out the defensive ends. West comments, "At the defensive end position we don't use any tools of the trade. I use 'live' dummies."

Here is a list of what is needed to run a normal football practice.

Tiger Band

By David Webb

Today's game has the potential to be a real Death Valley Thriller as the Clemson Tigers seek their fourth consecutive victory over the North Carolina Tar Heels. The last Clemson loss in the Valley came at the hands of the Tar Heels, when UNC last defeated the Tigers by a score of 24-19 on November 8, 1980. A Tiger victory today would be Clemson's 22nd straight unbeaten game in Death Valley, and 22nd straight win over an ACC team, which would break the all-time record.

Because of these facts, tickets for this afternoon's ACC clash have been sold out since August, and a partisan crowd of about 80,000 is expected to attend. For those donned in orange and white, the Tiger Band will start the pregame show rolling with the traditional tunes of "Sock It To 'Em" and "Tiger Rag" while spelling "Tigers."

Today's guests of honor dotting the "i" are Mr. and Mrs. David Craig of Elko. Mrs. Craig is the granddaughter of former Senator Edgar A. Brown. The Craigs are donating a Francis I sterling silver tea service given to the senator by the South Carolina Legislature.

The pregame show will conclude the Tiger Band's rendition of "America The Beautiful", directed by Richard E. Goodstein and accompanied by the Clemson University Chorus; "The Star-Spangled Banner", directed by Bruce F. Cook; and the Clemson University Alma Mater, directed by William W. Campbell. The colors will be presented by cadets of the Clemson Air Force ROTC and the invocation will be offered by The Reverend Steve Plonk of University Lutheran Church. Uproar '84 rolls on as the Tigers make their run down the hill to the tune of Tiger Rag.

The Marching Tar Heels, under the direction of John F. Yesulaitis, will begin today's halftime show with music from the motion picture "The Right Stuff." The 275-piece ensemble will then continue with "Softly As I Leave You." The Marching Tar Heels will conclude their halftime presentation by saluting their fans with the UNC fight song, "I'm a Tar Heel Born, I'm a Tar Heel Bred..." Jay Osborne is the drum major for North Carolina and is assisted by field conductors Jennifer Renfro and Scott Hall. Dr. Yesulaitis is also assisted by Allen Reep.

Tiger Band will begin its halftime performance with "Scream", composed and arranged by Jay Dawson. Trumpet soloists Scott Carlson, Philip Kesler, and David McCord will be featured when the band plays "Malaguena", from the Spanish suite "Andalucia", written by Ernesto Lecuona and arranged by Jay Bocook. "Softly As I Leave You", written by A DeVita and arranged by Jay Bocook, will feature the French Horn section and employ handbells played by members of the percussion section. Clemson fans everywhere will be saluted by Tiger Band as they conclude the halftime show with "The Song That Shakes The Southland" - Tiger Rag. Clemson's halftime show will be announced by Nick Peck.

This week Tiger Band would like to feature its drum majors. The drum majors play an integral part of the band, leading the group while they are performing on the field and during the game. The 1984-85 Tiger Band is served by drum majors Cindy Morris and Eric Foster.

Morris, a junior from Greenville majoring in nursing, is currently enjoying her third year in Tiger Band. She has served as a member of the band board and plays the clarinet. While a member of the Wade Hampton High School Band, Morris served on the flag corps for two years, co-captain of the color guard her junior year, and drum major her senior year.

Morris feels that, "The spirit of Tiger Band is great; it's special because it's so different from anything I have ever known." Foster, a senior Electrical Engineering major from Seneca, is now in his fifth year in Tiger Band. Foster also served as drum major two of his four years at Seneca High School, and serves as band commander for the 1984-85 Tiger Band. A trumpeter, Foster noted the 1982 Orange Bowl and all of the Georgia games as some of his more memorable experiences in Tiger Band.
